

Hong Tai Electric Industrial Co., LTD. Wins "Best Practice Award for Manufacturing Quality" at the 28th National Quality Award

The National Quality Award, established by Taiwan's Executive Yuan in 1990, is Asia's first national-level award for business quality management and the only top-tier quality honor conferred by the Executive Yuan—winning it has long been regarded as the highest recognition of a company's quality management. Hong Tai recent win of the "Best Practice Award for Manufacturing Quality" is an important milestone that affirms nearly 60 years of dedicated quality management since the company's founding in 1968, making Hong Tai the first wire and cable manufacturer in Taiwan to receive this honor.

Guided by its business philosophy of "integrity, diligence, and continuous innovation" and its quality policy that "Hong Tai's quality is our customers' assurance," the company obtained ISO 9001 certification as early as 1994 and has since adopted IECQ QC080000, a TAF-accredited (ISO/IEC 17025) testing laboratory, and the ISO 50001 energy management system, building a comprehensive quality management system spanning supplier screening, process control, and finished-product inspection.

On the technology front, Hong Tai has independently developed 69kV extra-high-voltage cables, low-smoke halogen-free cables, and rodent- and termite-resistant cables (patented in Taiwan and the U.S.), and has partnered with Japanese firms to develop 161kV extra-high-voltage cable technology while mastering key technologies for 345kV ultra-high-voltage cables. These products are widely used in national power grids, mass transit systems, and hospitals. Hong Tai is also the first solar cable manufacturer in Taiwan to earn TÜV certification, and has previously received the National Construction Quality Award (Golden Award) and the Yushan Award.

This award confirms Hong Tai's long-standing commitment to quality management and reflects the sustained efforts of every employee in quality improvement and R&D. The company will continue to uphold the spirit of PDCA (Plan-Do-Check-Act) improvement as it advances toward manufacturing excellence and sustainable operations.
